

Your next luxury spa vacation is minutes away

METRO SERVICES

No airport security to worry about or long traffic jams to endure, and no tips to dispense. Today's homeowners are discovering that a one-time investment in their master baths can translate into year-round spa escapes at a moment's notice. The new Guinevere Bath Collection, with its relaxed traditional design philosophy, offers an in-home romantic retreat imbued with a sense of timeless elegance. Consisting of a full luxury suite offering — airbath, lavatory, faucetry for the lavatory and bath, shower set, and toilet — this graceful collection infuses any bath with an aura of the infinite possibilities that await in this “in-home secret getaway.”

According to Lenora Campos, spokesperson for TOTO USA, a manufacturer of luxury fixtures, fittings, and accessories, “Transforming a bathroom into a luxurious personal sanctuary is one of today's most popular remodeling projects.” She continued. “You can ‘get away’ and relax, and, at the same time, increase the value of your home. In fact, during 2004, 8 million people remodeled their bathrooms, according to the National Kitchen and Bath Association, and a survey by a popular online remodeling magazine found that upscale bath space remodels, which include luxury fixtures like TOTO's new Guinevere Bath Collection, brought an 86-percent return on investment at resale.”

Soak away cares

Since time immemorial, water has been regarded as the great healer. Ancient Greek and Roman cultures were the first that recognized the relaxing and remedial properties of water and of mas-
