Ramah Wagner Chiropractic

Living a life of balance in mind, body, and spirit is the key to health.

How many times do you have one aspect in your life managed while neglecting another? Total health and well-being can only be achieved through balance of the whole person. At Wagner Chiropractic-Rehabilitation and Wellness, the whole person is evaluated and then we look at what parts of your health need to be balanced out. Fortunately, all the keys you need to health you already possess.

At Wagner Chiropractic, Dr. Ramah J. Wagner looks at the whole person. "I have been studying life and the way people work for a long time," she said. "I was blessed in having roots in natural health since I was born. So my question to each of my patients is: 'Are you healthy or just getting by?'"

Dr. Wagner is a third-generation chiropractor who attended the University of Iowa, then received her Bachelors in Science from the University of South Dakota. Following her heritage, she attended graduate school at Palmer College of Chiropractic (the founding college of Chiropractic) like her grandfather and father before her.

Dr. Wagner was born and raised in the Midwest, but has loved Lake County since she was a child. She moved to the area and began Wagner Chiropractic-Rehabilitation and Wellness after a year in the Sarasota-Bradenton area seeing a high volume of patients each day. "I love this area. I have been visiting since I was a child and loved it ever since! I am really excited to help people with finding a balance in their lives," stated Dr. Wagner.

Wagner Chiropractic will be offering Monday night lectures on such topics as "Simple Stress Solutions" and "Low Carb Craze — How to Do Healthy Low Carb Dieting". Classes are offered free of charge and seats are limited, so please drop in to 2755 South Bay Street, Suite D, Eustis or call to reserve a seat at (352) 589 5443.
